Karolina Bielenin-Lenczowska [1] CV [2] is a social anthropologist and linguist, associate professor at the Institute of Ethnology and Cultural Anthropology; in 2000-2014 she conducted fieldwork in the Republic of Macedonia, and in 2012-14 in Italy. Her research concentrated on everyday practices of Macedonian-speaking Muslim migrants living in Italy, and focused mostly on religious, food, and language practices as well as on the gendered experience of mobility. Currently she carries out research on practices of cultural heritage of the descendants of Polish migrants in Brazil, focusing on food and language. In 2015/16 she was a post-doc fellow at the Department of Anthropology, Federal University of Santa Catarina, Florianópolis.

She authored a book, Spaghetti with ajvar. Translocal everyday life of Muslims in Macedonia and in Italy (in Polish, Warsaw 2015), was editor of the book Neighbourly Ties in the Face of Conflict: Social and Ethnic Relations in Western Macedonia (in Polish, Warsaw 2009) and has published on Islam, migration, gender and methodology inter alia in the Anthropological Journal of European Cultures, Anthropological Notebooks, Ethnologia Balkanica and Ethnologia Polona. Her main research interests are: migration and mobility, gender studies, social change and cultural heritage.

Agnieszka Halemba CV [3] is a social anthropologist specialising in studies of religion. She carried out research in Southern Siberia on transformations of nature cults and shamanism under influence of state ideology and in competition with organised religious traditions. The main results of this research are presented in her book "The Telengits of Southern Siberia: Landscape, Religion and Knowledge in Motion" (Routledge 2006). More recently she has worked on transformations in the religious sphere in Ukraine and, to a lesser extent, Slovakia. Her main focus has been on social construction and implications of apparitions of the Virgin Mary. The results will be published shortly in a book "Negotiating Marian Apparitions: The Politics of Religion in Transcarpathian Ukraine" (2015, Central European University Press).

Renata Hryciuk [4] CV [5]
