

Doctors, the Social-Weavers

Doctors, the Social-Weavers. Knowledge and Knowledge-Making in Polish Primary Care

Hubert Wierciński

– [1]

Year of publication: 2021

Book/ journal title: Anthropological Journal of European Cultures

Original Language: angielski

in "Anthropological Journal of European Cultures" vol. 30 (2021), issue 1(March 2021) an article by Rafał Miałecki: Doctors, the Social-Weavers. Knowledge and Knowledge-Making in Polish Primary Care was published.

Abstract:

This paper explores the problem of knowledge and knowledge-making among Polish primary care doctors. Following Kirsten Has-trup and Tim Ingold, I argue that doctors are skilful social-weavers capable of exploring and reconciling various orders of knowledge. Thus, through a diverse set of knowledgeable yarns – originating from professional and state regimes, and embedded in today’s social relationships and economies – doctors are involved in the art of weaving a fabric composed of many, it would seem, contradictory orders of knowledge. The fabric in question is one in a constant state of reworking – although it is one that establishes a meaningful and knowledgeable environment in which the doctors can perform.

PDF [2]

Source URL: <https://etnologia.uw.edu.pl/en/news/doctors-social-weavers>

Links

[1] <https://etnologia.uw.edu.pl/en/news/doctors-social-weavers>

[2] <https://www.berghahnjournals.com/view/journals/ajec/30/1/ajec300105.xml>